No Double Dipping

Okay ladies, if you dare to go bare down under, but hate worrying where that little stick has been (we are talking about the waxing stick!) you no longer have to worry about it. At Shobha, they have the No Double-Dip Policy for all who love hairless skin and affordable service without any of the worries. Shobha, NYC's hair removal expert, goes beyond the generic wax – especially when traveling south of the border into Brazilian territory!

The nauseating truth is that double-dipping is common practice in wax application. This method uses the same spatula for the entire treatment, re-dipping the used applicator back into the vat of wax. This contaminated wax is then reused for treatments on other individuals. Unfortunately, this technique can increase the chances of potentially-harmful bacteria spreading from one client to another, which is particularly disturbing when dealing with the body's nether region (AKA the bikini zone). Ewww!

So, the next time you are looking to go bare south of the border...here's a deal you can't pass up!
