The Wednesday Obsession: Shobha Threading

Summer months are upon us (sort of) which means we can no longer hide our body hair under layers of clothes. A long time ago, a good friend of mine told me that Shobha Threading Salon in NYC was the only place she would go to for hair removal so I took her recommendation and checked it out. I've been a devoted customer ever since.

But for everyone who doesn't live in New York? No worries! Shobha sells its products and will ship anywhere in the USA. I wouldn't recommend doing your own brows- but for your legs, underarms or even bikini region, their sugaring kit is just slightly more painful (and literally just as sweet) as eating cupcakes. Actually, true story- I've eaten the sugaring gel. Straight from the can. I know that sounds really weird, but it just shows how completely natural and safe the ingredients are. In fact, the gel is made from nothing more than sugar, lemon, water and glycerine and it's the way the product is mixed and prepared that allows it to work effectively for hair removal.

Shobha makes products that are completely natural so that it works for even the most sensitive skin. Plus, we absorb up to 80% of the things we put on our bodies so you can feel safe using the sugaring gel as opposed to say a chemical depilatory. After using Shobha's sugaring kit, I now have a different criteria for judging my hair removal products: the taste test.

You can get the starter kit for $30 from amazon.com or myshobha.com.
