

Board of Directors

Shobha S. Gehani, M.D. was born into a family of prominent lawyers in India. Early in her childhood she elected to break from family tradition as she realized her true calling was in field of medicine, specifically serving children. After completing medical school at Grant Medical College in Mumbai, India, she moved to Detroit, Michigan with her husband where she completed her postgraduate training in pediatrics at Children's Hospital of Michigan. After completing her training, Dr. Gehani elected to stay with Children's Hospital where she completed 30 years of service. Always wanting to work with the most indigent members of society, Dr. Gehani also chose to join the staff of Comprehensive Services of Detroit, later named the Wellness Plan, which was the first Medicaid Health Maintenance Organization in the United States and later served as a model for other HMOs around the country. During her tenure at the Wellness Plan, Dr. Gehani served on the Board of Directors, Chief of Pediatrics and Chief of Staff at various times. Besides her love of children, Dr. Gehani is passionate about the arts in all of its forms including painting, music, theater, dance and literature. She is also an active skier and practices yoga.

Shobha Tummala recently joined the Board of C2C. Shobha is a recognized leader in the beauty industry with three salons in New York and a growing product line. As founder and CEO of Shobha, she has changed the face of beauty with her salons. Shobha earned her MBA from Harvard Business School and an Electrical Engineering degree from Michigan State University.

Prior to starting her own company, she worked at a technology start-up, a management consulting firm, & a fortune 500 company. With a keen business sense, Shobha has fused her indian heritage, her goal of natural beauty & the importance of hair removal together into a wholesome brand.
